TIPS FOR NEWER EXHIBITORS

- There is a Breed Standard which lists the ideal features and conformation for every breed shown.
- Exhibitors go to shows to compare their stock to that of the other breeders and obtain the view of the Judge on the day. The Judge is generally very experienced in the breed, depending on the level of the show you are attending. Some of the small shows will have a judge do several breeds.
- By becoming a member of a Breed Club relevant to your breed you can obtain a lot of information.
- Finding out where shows are to be held is relatively easy; schedules are available from Secretaries and there are two major websites which list the shows for which they are taking entries. Much of this information can be found in the Diary published by Our Dogs.
- When you complete your entry form look it over to make sure you have not missed anything, do not enter too many classes, one or two at most for your first time.
- If you have a schedule with a plan or timings for the rings on the day read all this and work out how to arrive in good time. If you receive passes look at them and find out where your benches are going to be found and see if it gives you a ring number.
- Take the appropriate grooming things for your own dog plus a bowl and water at least.
- When you arrive do not rush, take your time, reassure your dog the whole time and watch where it is both in relation to yourself but also in relation to other dogs. Do not let your dog annoy the dogs that are with other people and hope that they will treat you and yours with the same respect.
- Find your ring, have a look at what is happening and watch to see what the judge expects of both the dog and the exhibitors. They might have all the dogs facing one way or even facing front. Watch how they approach the dogs to go over them and be sure that yours is held firmly when it comes to your turn. Watch what pattern they request in the ring and listen to what they say, then do it according to the instructions. Just like at your training class, if you have been to one.
- Talk to your dog and reassure it both in the ring and outside, when you have done your bit for the judge praise the dog and then stand it properly so that it looks right if they glance over at you. The expense for this opportunity is all expended in that few minutes in the ring so try to make the most of the time you are there. There will be plenty of time to chat later.
- If you are unhappy with the result leave the complaining until you are in the car and on the way home. If you have had conversations with anyone who is knowledgeable in the breed you could enquire how your dog looked in the ring and also ask them for tips and information. If they are showing wait until they have come out of the ring or have a long break between classes.
- The most important thing is to enjoy the experience, your dog has not changed, even if it did not win, so you leave happy and come back again another day.
